COTTON.

New York, Oct. 2, 1964.—The Government report issued to-day is with one exception the best October report in the past ten years. Assuming conditions hereafter to be the same at last vest, the indicated crop is 12,111,600 bales. Assuming conditions hereafter to be the same as in 1807-88, the indicated crop is 18,212,900 been to find the case the probabilities now seem to solnt or the deviate approached how nearly perfect for the deviate approach or the wather during the mouth of September has been. With stocks increasing of September has been, with stocks increasing of september has been with stocks increasing of september and the movement the irreget on recovery hand it will shortly be found that 10 cents under normal conditions is a high price for cotton, and I therefore advise producers to accept present quotations and spinners to buy as startingly as possible at present. If frost is deformed until later than last year, the size of the crop will be surprising, and meantime it is evilent that the cotton trade is face to face with a new problem, namely, the value of an Aws-scan crop of 12,000,000 bales.

There was an increased attendance of Southern buyers, and with only a medium-sized supply the demand was active and responsive, and values on certain classes were again higher than two weeks ago. Good to choice Southern horses benefited most by the improvement and sold much better than last week, in fact, most sellers agreed that the starp decline of two weeks ago has about been recovered and that this class is selling fully as good as any time this season. No improvement, however, was quotted on the piain and common ofterings, of which too many are coming at present to the exclusion of the better grades. The problem of demand will next remain to be solved, and then the relation between production and consumption will have to be established around the rings. The work is too big to be done in a jiffy." Philip B. Winston, a Minneapolis clubman, traveled faster between Edwardsville and St. Louis yesterday afternoon than there is record of any other person doing. Winston had an appointment to go with a friend to a reception, and missed his car. He and his friends in Edwardsville studied over means of keeping the appointment, until only half an hour was left. Then someone suggested a special over the C., P. & St. L. which usually has a soare engine or two in the Edwardsville yards. The party drove to the station, arranged for a special order for a light engine. Winston mounted the freman's seat and was whirled over the twenty-one miles to St. Louis in exactly twenty minutes. "There is one feature of the present crop which is attracting the attention it deserves. By all accounts, there never was so much cotton open in the fields at once as there is at the present time. Pickers are said to be scarce, and in the event of bad weather many thousand bales would no doubt be lost.

"On the other hand, this premature opening points to a very large movement in the immediate future, at least, unless values should decline to a point at which the producer would be impelied to call a halt. It is idle to debate such questions just now. The weather is proverbinly an unknown quantity, and the farmer is, from the speculative standpoint, no less a puzzle.
